of Polish origin numbering some six million.

THE liberalization of the more rigid aspects of the Communist system which has taken place in the last year has no doubt played its part in encouraging the people of Posnan to express their discontent. The demonstration outside the headquarters of the Communist Party is a case in point. Similarly, the attempt to set fire to the local prison where many political prisoners including priests are reported to be kept, was clearly a spontaneous expression against the two most hated factors in the system. So far 't would be untrue to say that the riots were an organized revolt except, of course, that some arms appear to have been an erderly, march of indignant workers demanding more food. But the accumulated resentment among the people being so strong, it quickly caught on bringing more and more into the streets, and was quelled only by the quick movement of troops and tanks.

MOSCOW, Monday (Reuter). — The Soviet Communist Party leadership today released a decree on "elimination of the Personality Cult and Its Consequences" flatly denying that Stalinism arose from anything basically undemocratic in Soviet society.

It said the Soviet people had accepted "certain limitations of democracy" as "temporary sacrifices."

The full extent of Stalin's erimes was not known until after the arrest of Beria in 1963, according to the Central Committee decree published in "Pravda," the party newspaper.

LAW REPORT The Jerusalem Post July 3, 1956 his wife had not been proved at all. He could, therefore, not be presumed to have died, and to have left no heirs.

In reaching this decision, continued Justice Sussman, he had deliberately ignored the German Succession Orders on which the appellant had relied, the reason being that while he agreed that an order of administration of the estate of a deceased person made in a foreign country could be accepted as admissible evidence in Israel of the death of such person (as held in S.C. 18/48, Yalkut Cohen 1948, 2/324), this applied only when the deceased person was domiciled in the country in which the order was made. But in the preson concerned had ever been domiciled in Germany, and the Berlin court had, therefore, quite correctly held that its succession orders applied only to that part of the deceased's estate which was in Germany, and that they would not be recognized outside the boundaries of Germany.

The Supreme Court partly allowed an appeal against a decision of the Tel Aviv District Court, delivered on April 22, 1954 (S.C. 19/47).

Mr. A. Makliss appeared for the appellant, Mr. Eltisa Deputy State Attorney, and Mr.

Moritz and Esther Schumachez, of the Nasis in 1941, leaving a son who died in 1942 without sister, and Esther had five brothers: Max, the appellant in the present case. Leopaid, wno lives in America, and Nachman, James and Yaacov, who disappeared during the war.

Max applied for a succession order clainsing to be the sole surviving heir of Morits and Esther Schumacher. Evidence as to the fate of Nachman and Yaacov was contained in two letters written in 1950 by Lisa. to a relative in Tel Aviv, who testified as to their contents.
In these letters, addrased from Essen, Germeny, Lies told of how Nachman had been taken to a Nasi gaol in 1951 and of how she had heard that he had been shot there. After the war ashe had continued searching for him and still hoped that she would find him, aliva. She referred also to the fact that she had heard that Yaacov had also been shot in a Nasi gaol. The evidence concerning James was vague and contradictory. As to Moritz's brother and sister, the only evidence produced was that of relative who testified that "they had heard" that the two had died in America before World War II.

The Relieving President of the District Court (Judge Baker) held that the whole estate of Moritz's brother and sister, the
only evidence produced was that

Britain Said Prepared To Surrender Bases in Ceylon

Edward W. Blatchford Jerusalem Consul

Edward Williams Blatchford, who was for almost 20 years U.S. vice-consul in Jerusalem, has died in hospital at Chicago at the age of 87.
He was the son of E.W. Blatchford, who founded the wellknown firm of metal processors.
Edward Blatchford joined the family business after grad-vation from Amherst College in 1891 and worked hard in developing it until 1918, when he went overseas for war work for the V.M.C.A. For about 18 months he conducted a hut in London, and then worked in Copenhagen and Constantinople. After this experience with the V.M.C.A. he took up relief work in the Levant, and in the course of his duties he visited Jerusalem.
He was appointed U.S. viceconsul there in 1930, and became a prominent and popular figure. In 1948 his house was bombed — and as he was by then 80 years of age he felt that the time for retirement had come and he returned to his native city, Chicago.
In an obituary notice, "The ant than the country's economic welfare.

Al Hamishmar (Mapam), on the other hand, is not altogether convinced that the payment of the Co.L. allow ance will lead the country to economic perdition, pointing out that the allowance under attack is not the cause of soaring prices but rather the result of prices that have rism. If prices stop soaring, the Co.L. allowance will become superfluous and will die a natural death. He who would combat inflation has a number of weapons at his disposal foremost among which is price restraint. It follows that the attempt to abolish the Co.L. allowance is nothing less than a frontal attack on the welfare of the workers that will be most energetically combated.
